A PIECE OF CHEESE HISTORY

The Smithsonian soon may add a new kind of three-cornered hat to its collection. A sort of cheddar chapeau, if you will. The Smithsonian's National Museum of American History wants a Cheesehead... specifically, one of the foam-rubber triangles of swiss worn by Packers and Badgers fans.

Now we'll just have to work on getting a beer soaked Johnsonville bratwurst enshrined, and life will be good.

A STICKY SUBJECT

The U.S. Postal Service plans to honor the George "Papa Bear" Halas by putting his image on a new 32-cent stamp. Halas was coach of the Bears for 40 years. Apparently the stamp depicts Halas with his trademark "lucky" blue halter-top angora sweater with suede pumps going over a play with his team. An enlargement of the stamp's artwork was unveiled last Sunday at halftime of Chicago's 37-6 loss to Green Bay. It was fitting, given the fact that the Bears are sort of used to getting licked. ha!

COX HITS BELOW THE BELT

Chicago Bears linebacker Bryan Cox was very upset over his teams loss to Green Bay last week. Cox will receive a fine of at least 10-thousand dollars for flipping off a ref after one of his teammates delivered a late hit to Brett Favre.

In a post game interview with the media, Cox spent ten-minutes ripping his teammates. He stated, "We need to look at ourselves in the mirror because some of us need to go see the Wizard. We don't have a lot of heart." Asked what he meant, the linebacker screamed, "Get some... heart, like the lion in the Wizard Of Oz! Heart! Heart! Heart! Heart!"

Hey Bryan, it was the tin woodsman who wanted a heart. Be like the scarecrow and get a brain! Brain! Brain! Brain! Brain!

(The Bears still suck, the Bears still suck, the Bears still suck, the Bears still suck, they really, really, really, really, really suck, yes the Bears still suck.)

PACKER PIECES

> QB Brett Favre has 20 touchdown passes in Green Bay's first six games. He's the first quarterback since the AFL-NFL merger to get to 20 that quickly.

> Brett leads all QB's with a passer rating of 116.4.

> Green Bay leads the NFL with 204 points scored so far. San Diego is a distant second with 145.

> The Packers defense leads the NFL with 18 interceptions so far this year. They had a total of 13 last season.

> Green Bay's touchdown percentage inside the red zone is 65.2%, second best in the NFC.

> The Bears have lost five consecutive games to Green Bay for the first time since 1960-62.

> The Bears 37-6 loss to the Pack was the worst at Soldier Field since they lost 46-13 to Miami in 1975.

> The Bears still suck.

BEST ALL TIME TAUNT LINE

At half-time during a Green Bay/Chicago game a couple of years ago, the Bears were on their way through the tunnel to the locker room. "Hey, Steve Walsh!" yelled a fan to the quarterback, "You better fix that loose string hanging from your jersey!" "Oh sorry..." he added, "that's your arm."

JUST LIKE BACK UP NORT, HEY!

Each and every Friday night, Logan's Sports Bar features the best Wisconsin style fish fry this side of Beloit. And, if you're a CFBPB member, you get it at 10% off.

By-the-way, 49ers fan and Logan's manager Jim Kane (brother-in-law to WCPX Channel-6 anchor Michelle Kane) made a bet that if the Packers beat San Francisco, he has to move back to California! (Seriously, all of us in the club will miss you. Thanks, and good luck out west!)
